Angaben zum Inhalt

Lehrinhalte	European Welfare States are facing common challenges like increasing social inequality, persistent youth unemployment, housing shortage, old-age poverty, and as not only the Covid-19- pandemic shows: access to health care, information and transparency, effective payment. However, European welfare states differ deeply in the paths chosen to adjust their social security systems in order to find solutions for present and future challenges. In this course we analyze the different starting points of European welfare states in comparison given by very different welfare state ideas and models. We will further discuss options for introducing welfare state reforms in the future. What are the effects of privatization in pension schemes and health care? What are the risks of universal solutions, like basic pension schemes? What measures are necessary to combat youth unemployment? How about the idea of a universal basic income? Is this a serious and realistic option for Europe? This course invites students interested in grounding welfare states debates by empirical research results and still not hesitating to think about reform steps for adjusting European welfare states to a just and sustainable future.
